Senator LaFollette speaks here Wednesday night, Oct. 31.

Senator LaFollette speaks here Wednesday night having come during the night from Rock Island, where in a speech Tuesday night he made another attack on President Coolidge, referring to him as the "inarticulate, spineless, spineless, figure in the White House," who, he said, has "pussyfooted on every proposition that required backbone all of his life."

When Mr. LaFollette asked "who ever heard of Coolidge four years ago," some one in the audience yelled "Boston police strike," prompting the senator to remark that Mr. Coolidge then governor of Massachusetts, did not take a hand in that dispute until "all the trouble was over and he saw which side public opinion was on."

In connection with the announcement of Mr. LaFollette's itinerary, it was said that he was planning after speaking in Cleveland to go to his home in Madison, Wis., to vote. He has not been in Wisconsin since announcing his candidacy.

Additional Deaths Bring Total to Twelve in Fatal Blast on Trenton

FOUR MORE MEN MAY DIE

Daily Inspections Are Designed to Show Changes from Normal State

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—"Deteriorated powder" probably will be found the cause of the explosion Monday on board the cruiser Trenton, according to some naval ordnance experts.

Normally inert, the service charge is inclined to become unstable after being subjected to high temperature and under other unusual conditions. In such state, it was held the powder may become ignited by even the slight friction resulting from contact with the walls of the host.

As a precaution against damaged powder, naval regulations require a daily inspection of the magazine of each ship and actual tests of samples of the explosives stored there. These tests are designed to show infallibly whether the powder has changed from its normal state.

Norfolk, Va.—Four more names Tuesday night and Wednesday were added to the list of dead from the explosion aboard the cruiser Trenton in Hampton Roads on Monday, bringing the total to twelve. Of the six surviving members of the turret crew on duty at the time of the disaster, four still are believed to be in a critical condition.

Franklin Bigelow Jeffry, seaman, whose home was at Lynn, Mass. died Wednesday morning.

EMBEZZLER GETS TERM OF 25 YEARS

By Associated Press
Minneapolis—Fred A. Ludwig, former cashier of the First National Bank of Minneapolis, Lake, charged with embezzling more than $100,000 of the bank's funds, pleaded guilty in federal district court here Wednesday and was sentenced to 25 years in Leavenworth penitentiary.

The sentence, imposed by Judge John F. McGee, consisted of two and one half years' imprisonment on eight counts of the indictment and five years on the ninth count, the sentence to run consecutively.

"The purpose of punishment," Judge McGee said in passing sentence, "is twofold. It is to punish the offender and to deter others from a similar offense thereby protecting society."

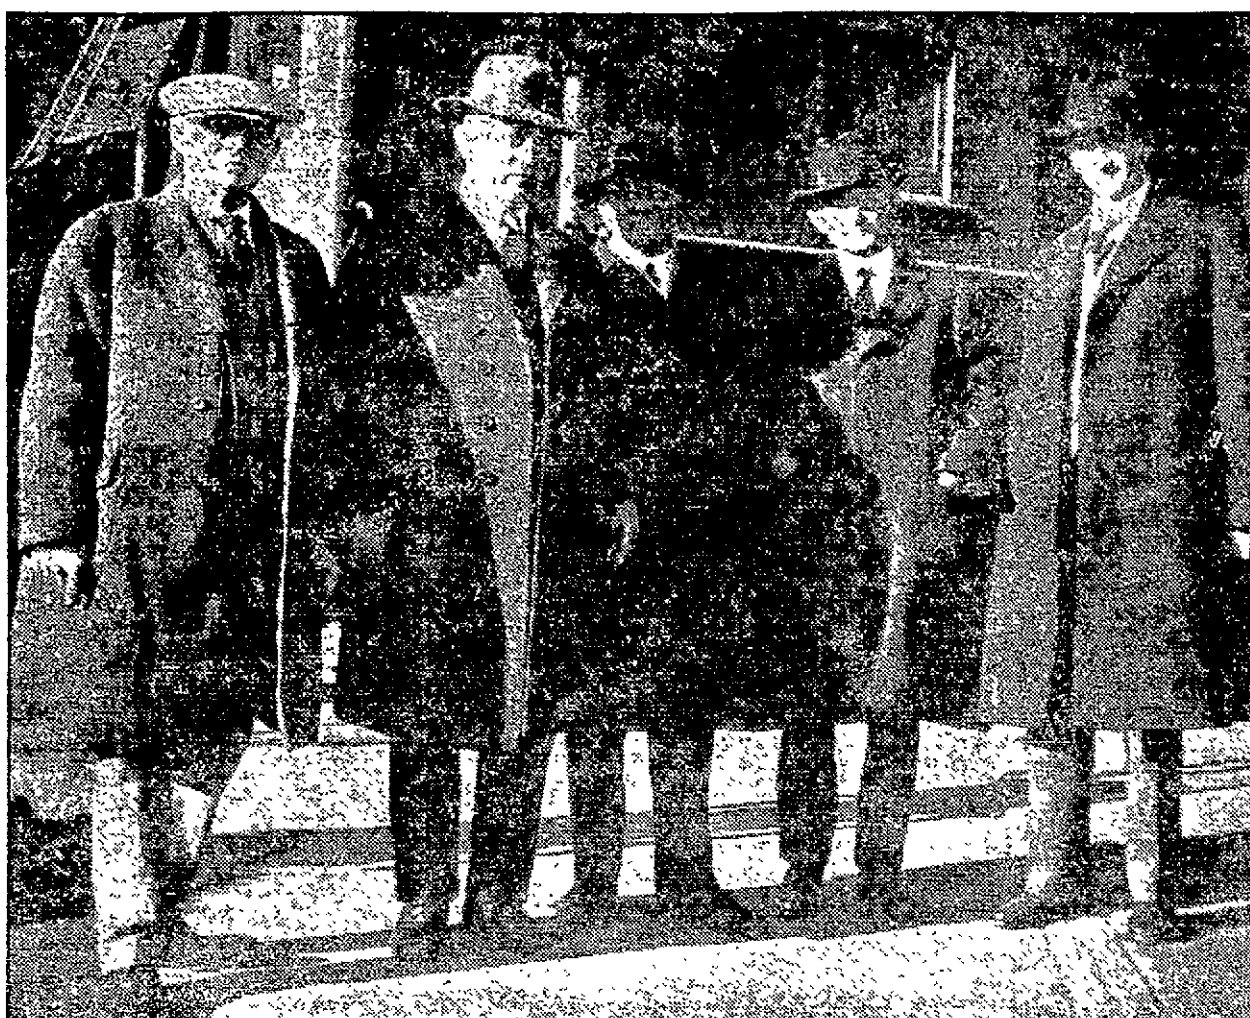

Ludwig disappeared from Minnesota Lake just before the shortage was uncovered in his accounts and for three weeks he evaded capture sleeping in hay stacks and living on berries and bits of food that he found. He finally was found hiding in a barn only a few miles from Minnesota Lake.

Wheeler Challenges Cal To Answer Attack

Independent Vice Presidential Candidate Demands Reply to Charges Made Against Coolidge

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—Declaring that various charges he has made against President Coolidge's administration during the campaign have gone unanswered, Senator Wheeler, the independent vice presidential candidate, Wednesday challenged the president personally to reply.

Through LaFollette-Wheeler campaign headquarters here, Mr. Wheeler issued a statement covering most of the allegations he has made and submitted seven specific questions which he asked Mr. Coolidge to answer. They were:

"Why, Mr. Coolidge, did you wait for congress to act before you started your halfhearted proceedings against the secretary of the interior who had accepted a bribe of $100,000 from certain oil interests and had given away the navy's oil reserves in return for that bribe and for contributions to the Republican campaign fund?"

"Why, Mr. Coolidge, did you wait for congress to expose the vile details of corruption in the department of justice before you consented to remove Attorney General Daugherty from office when you, as well as all Washington, knew his record?"

"Why, Mr. Coolidge, do you still retain in the department of justice those men who worked hand in hand with Mr. Daugherty in covering crime and protecting criminals?"

"Why, Mr. Coolidge, when you knew the agents of your government were trailing members of congress and shadowing their homes, did you not have those men discharged from the public service?"

"Why, Mr. Coolidge, did you protest against the investigations carried on by congress? Why, especially did you interfere to prevent investigation of the treasury department?"

"Why, Mr. Coolidge, were you unable to find any better defense for your strange attitude, beyond your suggestion that it might have been worse?"

"I ask these things, Mr. Coolidge. I ask them in the name of the American people, whose votes you are now soliciting, and I ask them also, in the name of—common sense."

OLD PARTIES SHY AT NEW COALITION

Extremists of Liberals and Conservatives Refuse to Follow Asquith

By Associated Press
London—Traditional rivalry and their dread of another coalition seem to be intensifying the opposition to the "pact" between the Liberals and the Conservatives on the part of the more extreme members of these parties.

Distrust and suspicion find loudest voice among the Liberals notwithstanding that Mr. Asquith, their leader, has given his blessing to the reciprocal arrangement whereby Liberal or Conservative candidates in some constituencies are standing side by side to avert three-cornered contests which might work for the benefit of the Laborites.

Mr. Asquith declares: "I can see nothing which violates the most rigorous code of public honor and political consistency in the two old political parties making reciprocal sacrifices in the face of a common danger," but many members of the party find their leader's dictum extremely distasteful and are not hesitating to say so.

British Ambassador Tells Gothic Board of Trade Program Is Effective

By Associated Press
New York—Although the Daves preparation plan has been in operation but a short time, there is "more hope, more good will, and more charity abroad in Europe than there has been for ten years at least if not almost from time immemorial," Sir Esmé Howard, British ambassador to the United States, declared in an address here Wednesday at a luncheon of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation.

Speaking on the general subject of economies in international politics and international trade as a factor for peace, the ambassador also referred to past activities of certain congressional hunters and company promoters in world fields, which sometimes have threatened the peace of the world. He declared that there is "only one way to eliminate this possible danger to peace and goodwill, and that is by the strict application of the American doctrine of the open door."

"If there is one thing we have learned during the last few strenuous years," he said, "it is the necessity of recognizing the value of economies in international politics. Nothing has, I believe, ever brought this so home to the world as the struggle over the Daves' preparation scheme, which brought the whole question out of the murky atmosphere of sentiment and politics down on to the hard rock of hard economic fact and proved to those interested that it is, when you come to dealing in sums required for reparations, almost as difficult to receive them without upsetting the economic equilibrium as to pay them."

Even now there are many who believe that the payment of the sum fixed by the Daves plan may produce economic convulsions in the creditor countries. That is a point of view which even the greatest financiers at the Paris conference barely hinted at but now the doctors are agreed that a surfeit of gold or goods may prove as indigestible to a nation as a surfeit of mince pies at Christmas to a schoolboy."

BOBCATS WILL GIVE DAVIS RUN IN HOME STATE

Republicans Refuse to Concede West Virginia to Democratic Nominee

STATE ADMIRES NATIVE SON Air of Confidence Indicates G. O. P. Hopes for Good Results in Campaign

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1924 by the Post Pub. Co.
Wheeling, W. Va.—John W. Davis is not conceding his own state by the Republicans.

State pride, on which under ordinary circumstances there could be no reliance, may help the Democratic nominee this time but the entrance of LaFollette into the lists as an invader of democracy's ranks makes West Virginia truly doubtful.

West Virginia is not a Democratic state. It failed to follow its neighbor, Ohio, in the upset of 1912. But it probably would have been assured to its favorite son this time had there been merely a contest between Calvin Coolidge and John W. Davis.

The labor vote in West Virginia is a determining factor. As a rule it voices its protests by voting for the party out of power. John W. Davis is held in friendly regard especially since the words of cordial endorsement given him by William E. Wilson, secretary of labor in the Wilson administration.

But while labor will divide its vote this year three ways and probably will give to Coolidge and Davis the bulk of its support, enough will be thrown to LaFollette to diminish Davis' natural lead in his home state.

Even as few as 30,000 votes for LaFollette, if most of them came from the Democratic party, would make the difference between victory and defeat for John W. Davis.

Wreck Train Races Death

Racine, Wis.—A race with death was made by a special wrecking train on the North Shore interurban line early Wednesday when the wreckage of the train was rushed to the assistance of Ray T. Ariens, who was imprisoned under an electric locomotive two miles north of here. The distance of 18 miles out of Milwaukee was covered in 12 minutes.

Ariens accidentally fell off the motor and was caught between the trucks in such a manner that it was impossible to move the vehicle without further injury to him. The wrecking crew jacked up the heavy trucks while physicians administered restoratives. Ariens, badly hurt, was taken to a hospital here. Limited and local trains were held up for an hour while the man was being removed.

LENGROOT SUPPORTS LUCK IN CAMPAIGN

United States Senator Will Vote for Blaine's Rival in Race

By Associated Press
Chippewa Falls—While disclaiming any desire to influence the votes of others, United States Senator Irvine L. Lengroot speaking here Tuesday night declared that he believed he would best serve the interests of the state of Wisconsin by voting for Judge Martin Lueck, Democrat, for governor at the November election, and stated that he would do so.

The senator's announcement came at the end of a discussion of federal and national taxation in which he pointed out that while federal taxes had been reduced approximately 40 per cent since 1921, state taxes have increased by the same percentage in that time.

"Governor Blaine has now repudiated the Republican party except for the purpose of getting votes for himself," asserted Mr. Lengroot. "He is still running on the Republican ticket but he is not supporting the party or its nominee for president, but is engaged in denouncing that party whose label he wears when running for office. Therefore the Republicans of Wisconsin are in no wise responsible for his administration, or under any obligation to give him their support. I have never undertaken to tell anybody how they shall vote and I shall not do so now, but as for myself I believe I best serve the great State of Wisconsin and the Republican party which has honored me, by voting for Judge Lueck for governor, and I shall do so."

LaFollette's Son Suggests U. S. Envoys Be Subpoenaed in Investigation

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—Subpenas were issued Wednesday by the senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, for William B. Knox, president of the American Bankers association; Charles D. Hilles, former Republican national chairman, and George W. Simmons, vice president of the Mechanics and Metals bank of New York City. They were asked to appear Thursday.

In a telegram to Chairman Borah Wednesday, Mr. Knox denied the statement made at the Chicago hearings by Frank Walsh, attorney for Senator LaFollette, that trust companies and national banks had been requested at a recent meeting of the American Bankers association to contribute a percentage of their capital to fight LaFollette in the west.

The telegram follows:

"Referring to the recent meeting of the American Bankers association in Chicago, Sunday's papers broadcast the following statement as having been made at the meeting of your committee by Frank Walsh, attorney for LaFollette:

"A speech was made requesting that all trust companies be required to give one twentieth of one per cent of their capital and national banks one tenth of one per cent on their capital as contributions to fight LaFollette in the west." Inasmuch as no such statement appeared in the records of our convention of which stenotype transcript was made and to the best of my knowledge and belief no such statement was made, I would be glad to receive the name of the speaker."

"No request has ever been made by the American Bankers association for funds for political campaign purposes. I trust this correction may be accorded by you the same opportunity for publicity as the statement read into your record by Walsh."

OTHER STATES LOOK AT BOB AS OLD MAN MAKING LAST STAND

LaFollette in Final Effort for Popular Tribute, Robins Declares

The final attempt of an old man to secure a popular tribute, which to him is the breath of life, is the way people in other states regard the presidential candidacy of Senator LaFollette, according to the statement of Raymond Robins upon his arrival in Appleton Tuesday afternoon to fill a speaking engagement in Lawrence Memorial chapel Tuesday evening.

"It is the view taken quite generally," said Mr. Robins who has toured eleven states campaigning for the Coolidge-Dawes Republican ticket. "It is the last dash of a man in old age. For 20 years he has had the ambition to become president. It is perfectly legitimate ambition. But Bob sees that he never will be president and therefore he is making his final dash to see how close he can come to the presidency."

ONLY TWO FOR BOB
Commenting on the political sentiment of the states he had visited, Mr. Robins stated that of the eleven western states he had toured only two are likely to be carried by the senator, and these two are Wisconsin and North Dakota. Other states he visited are Minnesota, Ohio, Montana, Missouri, Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona and New Mexico.

Coolidge, he said, will carry every one of the nine states with the possible exception of Missouri which has Democratic leanings. As the contest now stands in Wisconsin and North Dakota, the preference is for LaFollette, with the drift in Coolidge's direction, he declared.

"We shall win Minnesota," he continued, "and one of the reasons is the fact that we have a strong man, Congressman Shaw, who is blind, running

KOTAL IS PRESIDENT OF COLLEGE "L" CLUB

Edward Kotal of Chicago, Lawrence college football star, was elected president of the college "L" club at a meeting of the lettermen Tuesday afternoon. The vice president is Alton Gander of Duluth, while two Appleton men, John Zussman and Wilmer Rehbein, hold the offices of secretary and treasurer, respectively. The club is composed of men who won their letters in athletics.

Regular meetings of the club will be held on the second Tuesday of each month. Friday has been set aside by the club as the day when members may wear their letters.

In opposition to Senator Magnus Johnson.

BEATING THE AIR

California Mr. Robins regards as safe for Coolidge as Massachusetts. The "regular" element of the labor ranks in that state will not work hand in hand with the Socialists, he asserted. When he crossed the "Hindenburg" line in Missouri he observed that the Germans of that state look upon the Wisconsin senator merely as "an old man beating the air." Although LaFollette will run second in Ohio, he has no chance whatever of capturing the electoral votes of that state, he declared.

"LaFollette reached the zenith of his popularity about ten days ago," he said. "Since then he has been on the downward grade, and he is slipping in all the western states. Slowly the consciousness of the people is becoming clear that Bob cannot be elected, and that the very most he can do is deadlock the electoral college. But political and economic confusion also will come out of the deadlock, and that is the last thing the people want."

"Most of the Progressives who were with Roosevelt in 1912 are not for Bob, for Bob was not for them then. He stands with the Socialists who are for class cleavage. The Socialism imported from Russia can't naturalize itself in America. It needs an alibi. Bob furnishes that alibi, but most of the people refuse to be fooled by it. Some people will vote for him because they sympathize with an old man's ambitions. In Wisconsin people will vote for him from force of habit. But when the senator presents his program in other states, it will not carry, that's all."

NIGHT CLASS FOR RADIO BUILDERS

The electrical department of the vocational school will open a class in radio at 7:30 Wednesday evening. This class, which is the first in the subject ever held at the local school, is under the direction of D. W. Jensen.

The work to be covered depends largely upon the needs of the group. There will be some discussion and study of the theory and practice of radio which will lead to the selection and construction of sets by various members of the class. Choice of the sets will be determined by a study of local conditions.

There still is room for several more in this group.

Attorney John Morgan was in Marinette Monday in connection with a case in circuit court there.

TRAPPERS GET BUSY AS SKUNK SEASON OPENS

Wild duck are said to be unusually plentiful up north. Reports from Fremont and Shawano also are quite encouraging to those who have not yet taken to the marshes. The cold snap of this week is expected to start the fowl on their southern flight.

Many hunters are taking advantage of the rabbit season, which opened on Oct. 1 in most counties. The open season on squirrels started on Oct. 15.

Trappers also are preparing for a good season. The earliest season on furbearing animals is that of skunks which opened on Oct. 15 and closes Jan. 31. On Oct. 28 the season for trapping muskrat will open, and that will be the real opening of the trapping season. The mink season opens Nov. 1. Beaver, otter and raccoon are protected in Wisconsin for the rest of the year.

750 YOUNG PEOPLE ARE EXPECTED AT STATE MEETING

Headquarters of Sunday School Conference Will Be at Congregational Church

Approximately 750 delegates will be registered for the state young people's Sunday school conference here Nov. 7, 8 and 9, according to information imparted to the arrangements committee by J. L. Rogers of Oshkosh, secretary of the Wisconsin Christian Education association at a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening.

Mr. Rogers declares that at least 150 young people should be registered from Appleton churches and that the present estimate is 600 from other parts of the state. Entertainment must be provided for the latter number in homes. The registration fee was fixed at one dollar and the promotion committee will try to enroll as many as possible here.

Headquarters of the conference will be at the First Congregational church, the committee decided. All joint gatherings of boys and girls on Saturday and Sunday will be held at Lawrence Memorial chapel.

ON THE SCREEN

NORMA TALMADGE AND EUGENE O'BRIEN

No one could doubt the popularity of Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien after a visit to the New Bijou theater today and Thursday where Norma Talmadge is starring in "Her Only Way."

The photoplay depicts the struggle of Lucille Westbrook (Miss Talmadge) to decide between a marriage for love or money. Her true love (Eugene) taunts her when he imagines the scales are turning against him and to get even for his suspicions and false accusations Lucille marries for money. The subsequent events prove, that, as in real life, when a person marries for money they earn it.

In the progress of the story hate and jealousy, intrigue and scheming enter the lists against honesty and integrity with right triumphing after a long and surging battle with the decision often in doubt. Sidney A. Franklin, who directed George Scarborough's story, is one of the most skillful directors in the business and he declared to have gotten every ounce of value out of the situations and scenes in the fastmoving plot.

"CHRISTINE OF THE HUNGRY HEART"

Thomas H. Ince is a maker of successful pictures; Kathleen Norris is a writer of best sellers. And so Mr. Ince's picture of Mrs. Norris' "Christine of the Hungry Heart," with a cast headed by Florence Eldor, Ian Keith, Walter Hays, Warner Baxter and Olive Brooks, carries a double guarantee to entertainment seekers. It is a sincere story of one woman's life, and the hunger in her heart for love and understanding. One feels the drama and zest of life a little more keenly after seeing "Christine of the Hungry Heart," now showing at the Elite.

YOU ARE GUILTY

At the Majestic James Kirkwood, Doris Kenyon, Robert Edson, Mary Carr, Edmund Breese, the five year old boy wonder Russell Griffin, Carlton Brickert and William Riley Hatch are the ones who enact the principal roles in "You are Guilty." Each and everyone of these fine players have what are known in the profession as "fat roles" and each and everyone of them enacts the role assigned to them to perfection. If there were nothing else to recommend "You are Guilty," the fact that these players are in it is worth the price of admission. But there is much more.

The production is elaborate, millionaire country estates are shown and to prove that producers still have no regard for money when it comes to producing a thrill, a handsome home is destroyed by fire just to give Kirkwood an opportunity to rescue young Griffin from the flames. And we'll say that this scene is a corker for realism.

Trades Council Meets
The Appleton Trades and Labor council will hold its semi-monthly meeting Wednesday evening in Trades and Labor hall at which pending business will be transacted.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Autos Can't Be Parked In Oneida Zone

(This is the fourth of a series of articles explaining the new traffic ordinance passed by the common council recently. It deals in part with the section on parking of cars.)

In the interest of safety and avoidance of traffic congestion at busy points, protection of fire and police departments in their work and in preventing blockading of access to public buildings, the new traffic ordinance of the city of Appleton sets forth definitely the places where parking of automobiles will not be permitted.

Oneida street for more than two blocks is virtually a restricted area so far as parking of cars is concerned. The law says no car shall be left standing or parked on either side of Oneida-st. between Midway and Soldier-sq. and on the east side of Oneida-st. between Washington-st. and Franklin-st.

CAN'T STAND AT P. O.

No automobile, under these restrictions, is permitted to stop in front of the postoffice on Oneida-st. while the owner goes inside to get his mail. He is considered in the way of the fire department if he does. He either must park on the west side of the street beyond the fire station or on Washington-st. and use the postoffice entrance on that side. Cars can drive up to the postoffice or Appleton theatre discharge and take on passengers and drive on, but that is all. The term "standing or parked" means that the time of five minutes or more as the definition of parking does not apply here.

There are several reasons for this. It keeps parked cars entirely out of the area where interurban cars come to a stop, giving protection to passengers and preventing crowding at College-ave. The purpose in including the Washington-Franklin block on the east side is because of the possibility of delay or accidents to vehicles of the fire or police departments. With the postoffice and a theater located in that block the average condition for several hours each day otherwise would be a solid line of automobiles standing there. With a street car passing through this block it would be impossible for fire apparatus to pass to answer a call taking them in a north direction. Theatergoers are obliged to park on other streets hereafter or submit to reprimand or arrest by the police.

SOME OTHER RULES

Part of the additional places where cars must not be left standing or parked are:

In front of any fire barn.

Within the intersection of streets.

Within 20 feet of the curb line at any corner, meaning that corners must be left clear for that distance to prevent intersection accidents.

Within districts designated with "No Parking" signs.

Within five feet of the entrance to any alley and public or private driveway. This clause prevents the

BREAK A CHEST COLD WITH HEAT OF RED PEPPER

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Peel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known. Always say "Rowles."

COMMITTEE DEFERS HEARING ON RATES

Appleton Chamber of Commerce found it unnecessary to send representatives to Chicago Tuesday for the hearing on increases of freight rates before the Western Trunk Line committee, because the hearing has been postponed indefinitely. Some shippers believe the matter has been dropped entirely but the committee has informed the chamber that notice will be sent when the hearing is scheduled. A large number of cities in central Wisconsin which would be affected unduly by a change in class tariffs on freight were preparing to voice their opposition.

MEETING IS SPEAKER AT FAIR IN RURAL SCHOOL

Pleasant Valley school of District No. 3 in the town of Cicero last Friday evening conducted its annual school fair. A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, was one of the speakers. A program arranged by the school, of which Arnold Schultz is teacher, was carried out. A large quantity of specimens of school work was exhibited.

Thoughtless driver from blocking a man's driveway so he can't get his car out as is done on Franklin-st. often.

Within 15 feet of any fire hydrant or drinking fountain.

Within 20 feet of the entrance to any hospital, church, theater or hotel. This ruling keeps a space clear so private cars and taxicabs will have a place to drive up to in order to take on or discharge passengers, and is recognized as a convenience in case of stormy weather.

BRENNER ACCEPTS CALL TO FREEDOM

Why Women Look 60 At 40

With dark circles under their eyes, sallow complexions, drawn expressions drooping shoulders a lagging step many women of forty have the appearance of women of sixty. In many cases this condition is caused by overwork or neglect of such warning symptoms as headaches, backache, nervousness, displacements and irregularities which indicate ailments peculiar to women. If all women so afflicted would only rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, it would restore them to a normal healthy condition and the premature signs of age will soon disappear.

NEW LONDON LOOMS AS FORMIDABLE FOE FOR H. S. GRIDDERS

Wolf River Team Showed Strength by Beating West DePere Saturday

Kaukauna—A football battle that will put the Neenah-Kaukauna battle in the shade is expected next Saturday when the Kaukauna high school gridders tackle the strong New London eleven on its own grounds. Previously the Neenah game was looked upon as the hardest of the season, not considering the Appleton game, but the recent showing of the New London gang has awakened the locals to the fact that they are going to a Sunday school picnic Saturday.

New London gridders kicked over the dope bucket last week by downing West DePere 20 to 14. West DePere's team has been conceding superior to the east side gang which Kaukauna defeated 20 to 6 three weeks ago. According to dope, Kaukauna and New London ought to be pretty well matched.

Coach Smith is drilling the squad hard this week. The team has had a serious season thus far, but confidence does not win games alone and the coach is seeing to it that the boys have the stuff to back up their confidence.

Enthusiasm and support of the students has been fine this year. A larger crowd of Kaukauna people attended the Neenah game than attended from Neenah itself. Plans are being made to have another booster crowd make the trip to New London.

CANDY, MOVIE BILL 50 CENTS WEEKLY

Eighth Grade Pupils Keep Record of Amounts Spent for Sweets and Shows

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Eighth grade pupils of the south side graded public school spend an average of approximately 50 cents a week for sweets and movies and about 15 cents of film autographed by R. J. McMahon, superintendent of schools.

This survey was made to find out whether New London children's outlay for those luxuries would correspond with that reported in a survey by national authorities.

Accordingly Mr. McMahon gave each pupil of the eighth grade a slip of paper upon which had been printed the ten items which were considered as being the greatest in the luxury line. Each pupil kept his or her sheet all last week and on each day, wrote the amount of money expended for each of the various items on the paper. The results were tabulated and it was found that the class had spent $14.44 for the ten luxuries in one week.

There were 31 pupils, and only one reported no expenditures. The next lowest was 6 cents and the remainder ranged up to $1.95, which was the highest amount spent by any one pupil.

Most of the money went for candy, the class spending $4.35 in this way. The four chief items of expense were candy, shows, gum and ice cream.

When asked by Supt. McMahon if they cared to make a tabulation of high school pupils, fearing lest they might need to buy adding machines, decided that it was best that they did not keep track of their money.

War On Rouge Solves Exit Of H. S. Mirror

New London—Mystery of the disappearance of a large mirror from the girls' hall in the high school last year has at last been solved, and it develops that a silent war waged by the teachers against powder and rouge was the reason.

On Tuesday, during the regular assembly period in the high school, Supt. R. S. McMahon reported that he had found the mirror in one corner of the attic in the school. He said that several of the teachers, disliking the fact that the girls used the glass solely for the purpose of painting and powdering, had kidnapped the mirror.

However, Mr. McMahon has promised to restore the glass providing there is no more painting and powdering which is, he claims, objectionable.

POULTRY FANCIERS START NIGHT CLASS

The idea of "Are you keeping chickens or are they keeping you?" was stressed with the suggestion that be the latter part of statement ought to be the situation, a meeting in the assembly hall of the Appleton vocational school for the purpose of organizing a class in the care and breeding of poultry. The first meeting of this class will be held at 7:30 Friday evening at the vocational school under the direction of Glenn McIlroy of the vocational school faculty.
Mr. McIlroy has the cooperation of the Fox River Poultry and Pet Stock association in organizing this class. Some of the phases to be discussed are housing, feeding, culling, egg production, meat production, judging and common diseases.
The value of this course can be judged by an experience related by Mr. McIlroy. He said that two years ago while teaching at North Dakota Agricultural college he culled 60 hens from a flock of 210. The original 210 birds had produced 490 eggs in each week previous to culling. The 150 birds selected, having additional room and more food, produced 560 eggs a week, while the other 60 culled from the flock produced 9 eggs the week after culling.

UNUSUAL IS GOOD WORD TO DESCRIBE PLOT OF "NINA"

Susan Ertz' New Novel Is
Clever Working of Strange
Characters

BY ELEANOR WING

If you have ever read a story, and left it with the feeling that in some way or other you had confused the hero with a less important character, you know how Henri, the philosopher, in "Nina," by Susan Ertz, published recently by Appleton, Morton, Nina, even the plodding Tony, has a better right to the full glare of the footlights than Henri, but it is the latter's gentle fingers that are disentangling the thread of the awful knotted tangle which the other three have helped to make. And it is Henri's cynical, quiet smile which brings a pathos to the scene that no excitement could provide. Like "Jacques," Shakespeare's famous Frenchman, he wanders into the lives of many persons, befriending each in turn; and he is always alone, and lonely in the midst of crowds.

The strange problem as to whether a woman finds happiness in being enslaved by love or enslaving it is the theme of the novel. Nina has always loved Morton, her foster brother, who seems incapable of loving anyone, except himself. His nonchalance, thoughtlessness, and aloofness only endear him to women, and he marries Nina simply in defiance of his mother. Through his selfishness, he causes his wife the greatest unhappiness, and she divorces him because she wants to regain her old status of sister with him. She hopes to become dearer to him by the divorce, which will again make their relationship an easy one to keep, without many obligations. This is an unusual problem, and the author deals with it skillfully, without the use of much self-analysis. Nina's mental processes might become tedious, and perhaps Henri is introduced to avoid that happening. He easily interprets Nina's thoughts and emotions, and scoffs gently at her intense love for Morton, who certainly does nothing to deserve it.

Tony Fleming has always loved Nina with a steady, unswerving affection, which he hardly dares to show until Henri points out that a marriage would be an ideal thing for both Tony and Nina. Like many Englishmen, Tony needs a lot of prompting, which Henri is glad to give. When Nina chides him about the French view of marriage, Henri answers, "We know that marriage is not romantic adventure at all, but a business contract for the good of the next generation."

Morton's tremendous attraction for all types of women is thoroughly proven. First, in the case of his foster mother, whom Henri describes as having a "mind like a small room full of fog, where she is groping for only one person." And that one person is Morton. Even her own daughter, Nina, has slight claim to an affection which is lavished on the adopted son.

Nina is victim of his indifference, which goes to such an excess that it becomes charm and magnetism. Morton is made to realize how unfit he is to accept Nina's love, through Henri's impassioned plea, and writes her "Now that I am giving you up, am I beginning to love you? That's ironical, isn't it? The only unselfish thing in Morton's life is his voluntary departure to a place where Nina cannot possibly go. He wants her and realizes that he cannot bring her happiness, and so he leaves her to Tony."

Lady Audrey through whom the divorce is brought about, also falls into Morton's unconscious snare. She tells Nina that when Morton wanted her love, she refused it, and when she longed to give it, he flipped it aside. And even the passionate dancing Winnie, who was far too young to analyze her emotions, gave every particle of her affection to Morton and attempted suicide because she received no love in return.

But Henri, in an inconspicuous way, repudiates the thoughtlessness and vivid magnetism of Morton. He is contrasted in this selfishness against the other's selfish egotism, and one has the feeling in the end that a calm, kind personality is perhaps more powerful and desired than a daubed and vivid red one. "He," said Henri, "in the act of filling a kettle. I can still think beautiful thoughts. I am an artist."

And finally, when he has helped to settle the destiny of three people, he discovers that he has loved one, not twenty women in his life. The one woman was Nina, and in his great unhappiness, when he discovers this, he still has a courage to look up at the sky, and say, "Life is beautiful."

SIX FAMILIES ADDED BY ST. PAUL CHURCH

Six families were added to the membership of St. Paul Lutheran church at the quarterly business meeting Sunday afternoon. Plans were made for the reception of a group of young people at a later date.

Trustees of the church were instructed to repair the heating system in the parochial school house. They reported that the damaged crosses on the two steeples had been replaced with new ones, all gilded. The exterior iron and woodwork of the church also has been repainted.

Reports showed that $4,000 has been paid to date on the pledges with which all obligations of the church are to be wiped out. Members have until the end of 1925 to make the payments but many are completing their pledges now.

Adventures In The Library

By ARNOLD MULDER

A REALIST BEFORE HIS TIME

Had Edward Eggleston written all books today instead of in the seventies of the last century it is likely that the books would be more substantial and would have a greater meaning in the history of American letters. Eggleston worked largely in the spirit of the realists of today at a time when the romantics held the field. He was born 30 or 40 years before his time.

Most boys have at one time or another read "The Hoosier Schoolmaster" or if the boys of today are not reading it, those of 20 years ago did. It has even been transferred to the movies with the usual betrayal of the spirit of the original.

Now "The Hoosier Schoolmaster" is not a great novel; perhaps no one who has a broad view of American literature would call it great. But historically it is much more important than many another book that is in the library of more solid substance. It was about the first novel in American literature that can definitely be classed with the school of realism that became dominant during the last 20 years or so. To have produced such a book 20 or 30 years before there was a definite movement in this direction is an achievement.

AHEAD OF TIMES

"The Hoosier Schoolmaster" even antedates the work of William Dean Howells. It was published in the same year in which Howells' "The Wedding Journey" appeared (1871) and it was still several years before Howells tried realistic fiction in earnest. And at that Edward Eggleston went beyond Howells and had more affinity with the naturalists in fiction, with their stern and uncompromising fidelity to things as they are, than with the realism of Howells which left untouched the darker and more unlovely aspects of life. Howells, though a realist, did not at a rule portray men with "brutal and reckless faces." In William Morris's phrase, but Eggleston worked largely in the spirit of today which holds that any aspect of human life is a fit subject for fiction.

This is nothing short of remarkable when the romanticism of the time is taken into consideration. And it is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that all the circumstances of Eggleston's personal life were unfavorable to it. He was a Methodist preacher, a frontier circuit rider in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Minnesota. He was not in touch with any great literary movement toward realism and the natural thing to expect would be that if he wrote fiction at all it would be in the prevailing romantic vein.

LIVED ALOOF

He had even been brought up to think of novels as harmful and he lived nearly all his life among people who had this narrow outlook for the most part. Perhaps he might never have been lifted out of it if it had not been for the influence of a single book.

He read Taine's "Art in the Netherlands" and his novels of life in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, and Minnesota during the seventies of the last century derive directly from the spirit of the realistic painters of that country. The Dutch painters of that school believed in "painting the thing as he saw it for the good of the things as they are." When he portrayed an old fisherman he portrayed her exactly as he saw her in life, with a wart on her nose perhaps and a hole in her stocking. The accurate portrayal of the subject was its own justification. He refused to "prettify" his pictures.

And under the inspiration of Taine's book Edward Eggleston worked in the same spirit. It portrayed his unlovely backwoods material exactly as it was or as nearly exactly as he could get it on paper. And he did it without encouragement from his fellow writers of the time. In 1871 he worked in the spirit of 1924. He was a pioneer, an experimenter, working under the most unfavorable conditions possible. He did not produce supreme great books. Would he have done so if all the conditions had been in his favor? That is a question but he would have had a better chance. Every writer is partly a product of his time.

Birds Eye View Of New Fall Books

JOHN GALSWORTHY

The fall season finds millions of leaves of many shades and coloring fast falling between varicolored bindings in the publishing houses of America.

Raking through the great mass several stand out for luster, brilliance and importance.

Thus the Forsytes, of the great Saga, appear again in John Galsworthy's new book, "The White Monkey" (Scribner's) and the people of Riceyman's Steps continue their lives in Arnold Bennett's "Elsie and the Child" (Doran). The brilliant Hugh Walpole offers "The Old Ladies" (Doran); Ford Madox Ford, famed collaborator with James Conrad, has "Some Do Not" (Seltzer) and there is May Sinclair's clear-cut portrait, "Arnold Waterlily" (Macmillan).

So much for the English importations.

Entering the American scene and taking the advance announcements as well as books received, the Book Survey has selected the following for the "long winter nights."

Harvey O'Higgins' "Julia Crane" (Harpers). Here is a real psychological novel with none of the clinical stuff which trips up so many of this school. This same firm headlines "R. F. D. No. 2" by Homer Crox, who wrote "West of the Water Tower" and "Lottery" by W. E. Woodward, who wrote "Bunk." Already announced is Emalie Sach's "Talk."

The Alfred Knopf Co. is out with "Red Dawn" the last of Pio Baroja's picturesque trilogy, "The Struggle for Life." The others in this trio were "Weeds" and "The Quest." A new collection of Hugh Wileys negro stories appears under the title of "The Fowler." Knopf carries over into fall such assured successes as Van Vechten's "Tattooed Countess" and Hergeshelmer's "Ballad." One of the most important books of this concern, however, is the translation of Faures "Napoleon."

Boni & Liveright's stellar attractions are Ben Hecht's "Humpty Dumpty," the sardonic tale of a superman of vast passion defeated by the conventions and stereotype of mass life. It is probably his best bit of writing. Then there is Margaret Leech's "The Back of the Book," a really worthwhile piece of writing: "Chalk Face," a weird piece by Wald Frank and more of Bercevels colorful gypsy tales in "Tiana."

Brentano's best bet is Achmed Abdullah's exotic and well tinselled

The High Cost of Postponing Permanent Highway Building

Poor motor roads stifle industry and agriculture, waste huge sums annually in high maintenance costs, and greatly increase gasoline, tire and repair bills.

There is not a state, not a county, not a community, that isn't paying a heavy price for having too few permanent roads.

There are still many sections of the country—even whole states—that are trying to operate twentieth century traffic over nineteenth century roads.

This is costing millions of dollars every year, and will keep on costing millions until we have well developed permanent highway systems everywhere.

Even what we often call the more progressive communities are far behind the demands of modern highway traffic with its 16,000,000 motor vehicles.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada to Mexico, we need more Concrete roads—the roads for twentieth century traffic.

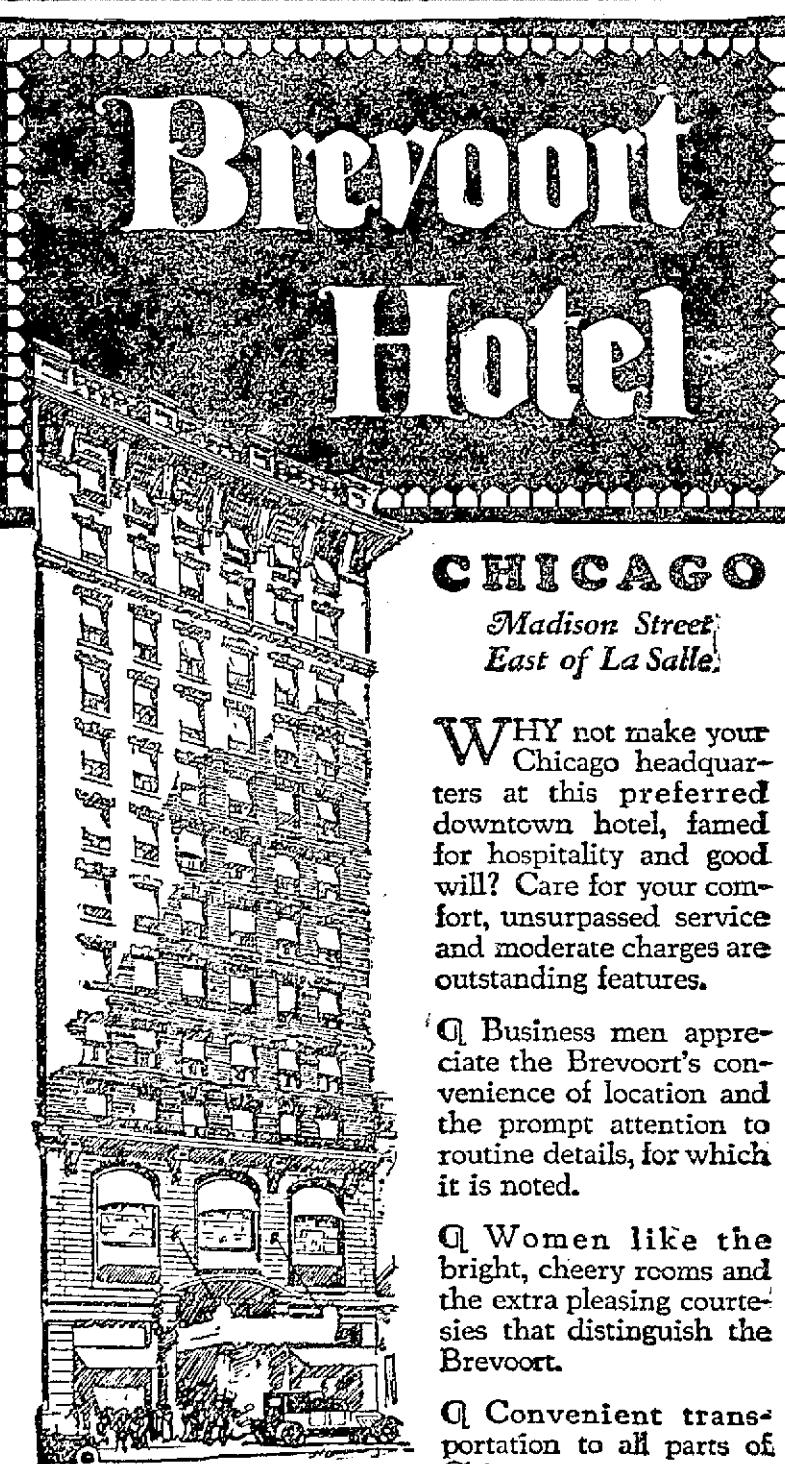

Your highway officials want to be of the greatest possible service to you. Get behind them with ways and means that will provide more Concrete roads and streets. Such an investment will pay you big dividends year after year.

poet Masefield's novel, "Sard Harker."

Harcourt Brace Co.'s publication of Forster's "A Passage to India" is one of the really important things of the year, and this firm also has Stallings' "Plumes," a novel that preceded this writer's play "What Price Glory?"

If one wades through this list and puts Selma Lagerloef's "Morgens" at the head, there might still be a few hours left to read some good newspaper reminiscences in "Memoirs of

But the reader had best hasten, for the winter publications are not far away and Theodore Dreiser's new novel, "An American Tragedy," is announced by Boni & Liveright.

Add Amazing Endurance to Unequaled Results

The success of the Chrysler Six, which has made it literally the talk of the country, is well founded.

It is not due to some single engineering innovation of a spectacular nature. It is a success that involves every phase of performance and ownership.

It is based on such fundamentals as power production and application, weight distribution, space engineering and the essentials of economy.

It is a success that has completely changed prevailing ideas of automotive design deemed essential for finer motoring. It has swept into the discard the cumbersome and the wasteful.

To cap the climax come such records as the recent performance at Fresno, Calif., when a stock model covered 1,000 continuous miles in 1007 minutes, 54 seconds. To unprecedented results is now added positive proof of amazing stamina and dogged endurance.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan. Dealers everywhere

RESTOCKING KEEPS FISHING GOOD IN LAKE WINNEBAGO

Many More Fish Are Put into Lake Than Are Taken Out Every Year

Fishing in Lake Winnebago and tributary waters is kept up owing in a large degree to the conservation tactics of the state conservation commission which not only restocks the waters with fish fry but saves hundreds of fish from the fate of pollution by the waste from paper mills on the lower Fox river.

Objection has often been made by fishermen in the lower Fox river valley against the project of the state conservation commission in taking minnows from below the dams at Menasha. But, it was pointed out by one who is in position to know the conditions in the valley, the objection is due to a misunderstanding of the commission's intentions.

"The fry, or young minnows," it was explained, "are swept over the dam and are carried out into Little Lake Butte des Morts by the current. When they become older, they come back upstream and are killed by the dams. The commission rescues the fish and places them above the dam or plants them in other waters with the state where fish are needed. This process saves the lives of many young fish, for the waters below the dams contains refuse from the paper mills and kills them off in large numbers."

Fish are shipped about the state in cans resembling large milk cans. Only about fifty fish can be put in these large containers, or they would not survive the journey to their destination. A "carload" of fish is generally about 400 cans. The actual count of fish therefore is far less than might be supposed. In fact the amount of fish used for planting fry in other bodies of water in the state is only one-tenth to one-fifth of the number replanted in the local waters and tributaries, members of the commission say.

CHANGE IN TRAINS UP TO COMMISSION

Decision is expected in the near future from the Wisconsin railroad commission on the request of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company to curtail its train service on the branch running between Oshkosh and Hortonville by way of Larsen and Allenville.

Testimony was taken at Oshkosh by the commission after protest had been voiced by residents of Larsen and Allenville against the change. The railroad company asked to take off the train a day because the line was not a paying proposition during the motoring season.

This would leave only one train a day operating on the line going from Oshkosh to Hortonville in the morning and returning in the afternoon. It was contended that shoppers going to Oshkosh would have to remain there overnight, whereas the present arrangement permitted them to go to that city in the morning and return in the evening.

BOY SCOUT COMMITTEE INSPECTS CAMPSITES

Several desirable locations for a campsite were found by a committee of Valley council, Boy Scouts of America, which visited the east shore of Lake Winnebago Monday to negotiate a possible lease. The investigators were P. O. Keicher, valley executive, Louis Bonini, president of the council, and John Schommer of Little Chute.

No decision was reached concerning a choice of land but the findings will be reported to the valley council at its next meeting. The aim was to locate a place where there is woods and a topography which would permit scout training.

It is the plan of the council to lease a large tract and equip it for camping, with the idea of purchase later for a permanent campsite.

ORDER REMOVAL OF PUMP FROM CURB

City May Get Into Suit With Herrmann Motor Car Co. Over Gasoline Pump

In response to action taken by the common council last Wednesday evening, A. C. Bosser, city attorney, served an order upon the Herrmann Motor Car company on Superior-st Tuesday to remove the gas pump installed at the sidewalk in front of the garage. The company applied for a permit for gas pump several months ago. At that time the council, upon the recommendation of L. O. Hansen of the street and bridge committee, refused the permit and at the same time passed a resolution to issue no more permits for gas pumps at street curbs. The company protested on the ground that the pump and other equipment had already been purchased. A suit to compel the owner to remove the pump is foreshadowed.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative function clogs and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acids of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

GREEN BAY SQUAD WILL CLASH WITH MARINES SUNDAY

Minneapolis Pros Will Seek to Wipe Out Former Packer Victories

Minneapolis, Minn. — With the strongest team in seven years in togs the Minneapolis Marines will invade Green Bay on Sunday to face the Packers, champions of the northwest in a Pro league football game.

Manager Joe Dunn has a collection of footballers second to none in this part of the country. Tough breaks cost the Marines victories in their first two games. Against Duluth, a fumbled punt gave Dwyer Seckler's crew a chance to drop kick for the only score of the game. A week later, the Marines bit the dust in Chicago at the hands of the Cardinals, 13 to 0, after they had played rings around Paddy Driscoll's crew. Last Sunday, the Marines shook off the jinx and handed Ironwood a 7 to 2 upset in their own back yard.

WANT TO WIN

The Marines are going to Green Bay all set for a win. Dunn's crew has never beaten the Packers, but this year they expect the worm to turn. Back in 1921, the Marines lost 7 to 6 when the Packers came from behind to get a victory in the final minutes of play. In 1922, Marty Norton, who is again with the Marines, streaked through for a touchdown which put his team in the lead but again the Packers launched a "ninth inning" rally and pulled the game out of the fire by scoring twice. Last season, the teams battled seven up for two periods but in the third and fourth periods, Basinger, the Packers' line plunging halfback, hammered at his way across for two touchdowns. Manager Dunn has revamped his Marines this season and there are a number of new faces in the lineup. He has three of his old stars in the backfield, Moos, Marty Norton and Eddie Novak. Simons, a youngster from Halesburg, is burning up the gridiron at fullback. Cleave, Paul and Putzier are the Marines' second string backs.

TWO GOOD TACKLERS

Scott of Hamline and Eberts of Carlton are playing the tackles while Baril of St. Thomas and Christianson of Minnesota hold down the ends. Tierney, Minnesota, all western, and Kramer, a Marine veteran, perform as guards while Hooley, Detroit, snapping the ball at center. Madigan, Johns, and Dunnigan are the reserve linemen.

APPLETON PLANS HOT RECEPTION FOR LACROSSE

Formidable Record Of Invaders Gives Promise Of Battle

Regular Orange Ends Recover from Injuries and Will Be Back in Place for Saturday Contest

Julie Kevin is planning a hot reception for the grid squad of his former school when LaCrosse invades Appleton to meet the Orange youngsters Saturday afternoon. The Appleton mentor is looking for a hard battle but is confident his charges will win after the showing they made against Manitowoc Saturday when they copped 38 to 0. Last year the LaCrosse squad lost the race for the state championship to Waukesha high by a single point, and its record this season indicates it has lost nothing in its strength since then. Sparta and Winona high both can testify to this fact for the former lost 42 to 0, and the latter, 21 to 0, in games with LaCrosse earlier in the season.

Since the Appleton youngsters opened their season with a lopsided defeat at Sheboygan they have staged a remarkable recovery which promises well for the rest of the year. Fond du Lac and Manitowoc usually regarded as two of the strongest elevens in the Valley conference, bowed to the Orange by formidable scores and if the Appleton huskies can keep up their present pace they should have fairly easy sledding until they meet Marinette in their final battle.

FRAZER RECOVERS

Frazer, flashy end who was taken out of the lineup for a week when his injured wrist gave out, is back on the drill field as good as ever, and Courtney also will be back in the game against LaCrosse. Stammer and Steen is putting in most of their time kicking and punting in which department the Appleton squad was a bit weak Saturday. Bleier turned out to be a whiz at center and will hold that position for the rest of the year. Hieble, a substitute who played on the regular backfield for the first time against the Shipbuilders made a record for himself and will be sent in again Saturday. Bowley, quarterback and probably the smallest man on the squad, played his usual brilliant game and will be on hand in the LaCrosse fracas.

Kevin plans to start the same line-up as last week with the exception of Courtney who will play end opposite Frazer, but it is his policy to give his second and third stringers a chance to play whenever possible and in all probability there will be an entirely new team in the field when the final whistle blows.

BLUE MOONS COP TWO GAMES BUT LOSE MATCH

Olympic Allies Tuesday night dropped two out of three games to the Kimberly Blue Moons here but took the match with a margin of 161 pins. The Kimberly quintet copped the first game handily, but the second was disastrous. The Olympics topped 967 maples while the best the Blue Moons could roll was 743. The invaders took the third game also but their narrow margin was too small to overtake the Appleton plasmashers.

G. Jimos of the Olympics rolled 850 for the match but J. Thomas' 210 and 203 had his best game here.

The scores:

WHAT the game needs is more men like Peckinpugh. An exchange said this, not McGraw.

CRITICS EXPECT BLUES TO BLAST RIPON'S CHANCE

Lawrence Looked Upon as One of Favorites to Cop Midwest Grid Title

LITTLE FIVE STANDINGS
Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Lawrence	1	0	1.000
Beloit	1	0	1.000
Ripon	1	0	1.000
Carroll	0	0	.000
Northwestern	0	3	.000

Milwaukee—Ripon college is expected to be eliminated in the Little Five conference race by Lawrence college next Saturday at Ripon, in the opinion of critics.

The basis for this opinion is found in a comparison of the accomplishments of the two elevens. Lawrence's showing against the University of Iowa last Saturday, when the team held the Big Ten member to 13 to 5 score, is indicative that Coach Mark Catlin has rounded out one of the best elevens Lawrence has ever known and that it will rank as one of the favorites for the Midwest title. The showing against Northwestern college by Lawrence, when the latter won 55 to 0, indicated the superiority of the Appleton eleven over Beloit and Ripon colleges which won from Northwestern by much smaller scores.

Ripon has met defeat this season at the hands of Stevens Point normal, a mediocre Normal conference eleven. St. Norbert's college, a strong independent team, and Cornell college, a midwest conference contender. The latter defeated Ripon 26 to 0.

The conference "dark horse," Carroll college, is ready to go but awaits its first conference game with Lawrence on Nov. 1. Beloit college will fight vigorously the claims of Lawrence to the last ditch. The southern Wisconsin college has had luck this season due to injuries to first string players and early games have not shown caliber of standard teams of Coach Tommy Mills, but he hopes to have the men in trim for the encounter with Lawrence on Nov. 22, at Beloit. Meanwhile, Beloit will take on Knox and Cornell colleges, midwest contenders, and Ripon college, Lawrence's intervening opponents at Carroll college and Hamline university. Carroll meets Ripon and Northwestern in addition to the Lawrence game.

SPORT VIEWS AND NEWS

Tom Johnson, the Marinette coach, wonders who the "powers that be" will quit ruling his plunkin chasers intelligible. Nearly a whole team of his best midwestern prospects have been ruled out for one reason or another. As Johnson's eleven stand now, he has only two veterans of last year in logs.

Walter Pierce, Menasha baseball mogul, knocked 'em dead on the al-jays in the Ed Barth's sweepstakes in Racine. Getting off to a 236 score, Pierce followed through with 159, 213, 276 and 212 or a total of 1,113 which carried off first money, $750, from some 250 other bowlers.

Cub Buck, who sells automobiles in Neenah (and elsewhere) when he is not chasing the pigskin for the Packers, had a great day of it in the Milwaukee game. Cub kicked well, shot a pass to Lambeau for a touchdown and gave the crowd a good thrill by tearing off a run with the ball.

Rafike, New London's sensational halfback, just about pulled a "Granger" stunt against West De Pere high. He was the whole show on the offense for the New Londoners and his brilliant dashes scored three touchdowns which paved the way for the DePere schoolers to bite the dust, 20 to 14.

The clans of Brunnet and Hansen had quite a family battle in the Valley conference game between West Green Bay and Fond du Lac. Strange as it may seem each of the teams had a Brunet and Hansen playing in the backfield. It was a tough job for the scribes to write their play by play account.

East Green Bay got off on the right foot in the Valley gridiron chase by nosing out a 3 to 0 victory over Marinette in a thrilling game. With but a minute to play, Zuidmuelder, the Hilltoppers' halfback, stepped back to the 20 yard line and booted the oval squarely between the goal posts.

Appleton high showed class posture against Manitowoc and Coach John, plucky youngsters were sent back to the Shipbuilding community on the short end of a 38 to 0 score.

Hutchins, the Fond du Lac quarter back, cut a big figure in the Cardinals 7 to 6 victory over West Green Bay. The little backfielder plunged across the goal line for Fondy's touchdown. He was shooting the majority of passes and also took a "foot" every once in a while in the Fondy kicking.

Up And At 'Em, Girls!

RUTH ST. MARTIN STRUTTING HER STUFF

In the south they call her the great, great cheer leader in America—and at that cheerleader's got to step a few to eat Ruth St. Martin of Newcomb college, the coeds' part of Tulane university. Ruth has developed a feminine cheering contingent that drives the Tulane teams to victory in game after game. Which is about as much as one could ask of any rah-rah conductor, male or female.

At any rate, nobody up to date has stepped forward to challenge Ruth's claim for supremacy.

Badger-Wolverine Tilt Recalls Fight Of 1923

Milwaukee—Wisconsin's game with Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday recalls the play on which the Wolverines scored their touchdown at Madison last year and sneaked off with a 5 to 2 victory.

The Badgers in that game were drilled to perfection. Just as Ryan worked wonders with the Wisconsin team after the Coe game this year and held Minnesota to a tie, he worked wonders with the team after the sorrowful showing at Urbana last year and placed a football machine on the field against Michigan that deserved to win on its real merits.

The Wisconsin-Michigan game of last year will be a choice topic among football men years hence, all because of one freak play on which the Wolverines scored their touchdown. It happened late in the second quarter after Wisconsin had showed a marked and surprised superiority over their rivals since the start. Tackling the ball on a punt, Rockwell, who had replaced Uteritz at quarter for Michigan, started on a bee line down the sidelines for the Wisconsin goal 60 yards away. He was thrown twice, perhaps three times but he persisted in sticking rigidly to the fundamentals of football and got up each time and ran.

"HE GOT UP AND RAN" The number of times he was thrown to the ground by tackles matters not. He got up each time and ran. That is the big thing. HE GOT UP AND RAN.

Whether he was really downed on any of the times he was thrown to the ground is not the point. The point is he didn't wait for their decision but scrambled ahead, secure in the knowledge that if the officials did decide against him and bring the ball back, nothing would be lost.

Wisconsin men, on the other hand, watched Rockwell weave in and out. They made no attempt to stop him because they believed that on the last play on which Rockwell had been thrown to the ground he had been downed. Wisconsin men had a dozen opportunities to tackle Rockwell clearly after he had climbed back on his feet for the last time and had started for the goal but they let him go by.

WHISTLE OR NO WHISTLE Whether Col. Mumma, who was in the midst of the play, blew his whistle at any time when Rockwell was on the ground does not matter. Wisconsin men apparently heard it and heeded the play completed, but after Rockwell got up the last time and started to run there was only one thing to do, whistle or no whistle—tackle the runner.

But they didn't. They let Rockwell scoot toward the goal and they lost the game.

That's why Saturday's game will be a real grudge affair.

Back in 1899, before most of the players on this year's variety at Madison even saw the light of day, Wisconsin won its last game from Michigan. Only seven games have been played between the two schools since then but Wisconsin has never been able to come out on top although in 1921 they played a 7 to 7 tie at Camp Randall.

The two schools have played 16 games. Seven were won by Michigan and two by Wisconsin. One was tied. Wisconsin's two victories came more than a quarter of a century ago. In 1893 in the second game between the schools, Wisconsin rushed off with a 34 to 18 victory and in 1899, after a lapse of six years, Wisconsin came out ahead, 17 to 5. Michigan won the first game between the schools in 1892 by a score of 10 to 6.

Then complete record follows:

Year	Michigan	Wisconsin
1892	10	6

"The Nervous Wreck"

By E. J. Rath

Copyright 1924 by NEA Service Inc.

"Suppose," continued the Wreck as he stared through his spectacles, "that you happened to be stranded with your wife out in the middle of a county that's so big there isn't any sense to it. Suppose you didn't have a drop of gas. Suppose somebody came along who had plenty of gas, and you offered in a decent manner to pay for a few gallons if they'd let you have it. And suppose a big hog sat back in his seat and gave you the laugh and told you to get busy and push your car out of his way, so he could drive on. And suppose you had to have that gas or stay there until God knows when. How?"

His voice had shrilled itself to an edge and he was making gestures with both arms.

"All right, I'm supposin'," said Charley.

"Well, what would you do?"

"Speaking hypothetically, you mean?"

"Speaking any way you like," barked the Wreck.

Charley rubbed his chin and appeared to consider the problem.

"I reckon," he drawled, "I'd try to get some gas."

The Wreck waved his arm to indicate that all doubts were resolved.

"That's all there was to it," he said.

"Mind, now," said Charley, cautiously, "I'm not sayin' that I'd feel drove to committin' unlawful acts. Gettin' gasoline, you might say, is meetin' one of the demands of nature, and I reckon it can be justified by powerful arguments. But when it comes to takin' people's watches and jewelry and—"

"They lied!" interrupted the Wreck.

"I'm only repeatin' what was told the sheriff."

"I say they lied."

"I guess we're shovin' all hands on the rail," mused Charley.

"I'm getting tired of all this lying," said the Wreck, sliding off the table. "I can stop it in three minutes."

He was headed for the door when Sally detained him with a firm hand.

"Henry, are you crazy?"

"I'm sore."

"You stay right here. I don't care whether you're sore or not. You're not going near Mr. Underwood."

"Why doesn't he stick to the truth, then?"

"I haven't the least idea. I don't particularly care. But you keep away from him."

The Wreck shook himself loose from her grip and went back to the table. Charley McSween nodded his approval.

"There ain't any occasion to get excited," he said. "You might go up there and tell him he's a liar and bust him in the eye. But that wouldn't be no compensation for sittin' in jail over at the county seat waitin' to give you the rest of your natural life."

"I'm not going to stay here for the rest of my natural life," growled the Wreck.

"There ain't any need."

"How long are you figuring on?"

"I figure I'm goin' to need you and Mr. Underwood so long as the boss and his family are here."

"How long is that?"

Charley seemed to be calculating.

"Not more'n a month. It ain't likely."

Sally gasped.

"A month!" she cried. "Why, we won't dream of it!"

"I'm sure sorry, ma'am. But he's most always stay a month."

"We've stayed longer now than we had any business to."

"We're all creatures in the glidin' hands of Providence," observed Charley. "A month ain't much in the lives of young folks."

Sally was showing plain signals of alarm. She fell to clapping and unclapping her hands and moistening her lips, while her eyes blinked with bewilderment and consternation. Finally she began walking to and fro.

"I won't do it!" she exclaimed. "A month! Not another day. If I can help it, you haven't any business to keep us here. Do you think I'm going to stay here and be turned into a slave, cooking your meals and doing the kitchen work for a lot of able-bodied men who are too lazy to help themselves? Yes, and doing the housework, too. I won't stand for it!"

Charley looked interested, and so did the Wreck.

"Just because I've been good-natured about it," stormed Sally, "is no reason why I'm going to let anybody rub it in. I don't care what happens. I'm through! I'm going to find out—"

The Wreck was patting her on the arm.

"Sh-h, now," he said. "Go easy. She flung his hand aside and turned on him with a look of amazement.

"Henry Williams, are you a worm?"

"That's all right," he said in a voice that tried to be soothing. "You're not going to go running yourself into trouble."

"You mean to say you're going to submit?" she demanded.

"There, now; you mustn't get excited," said the Wreck.

For an instant she was without speech.

"Excited?" You say that I'm excited? You? Why—why—"

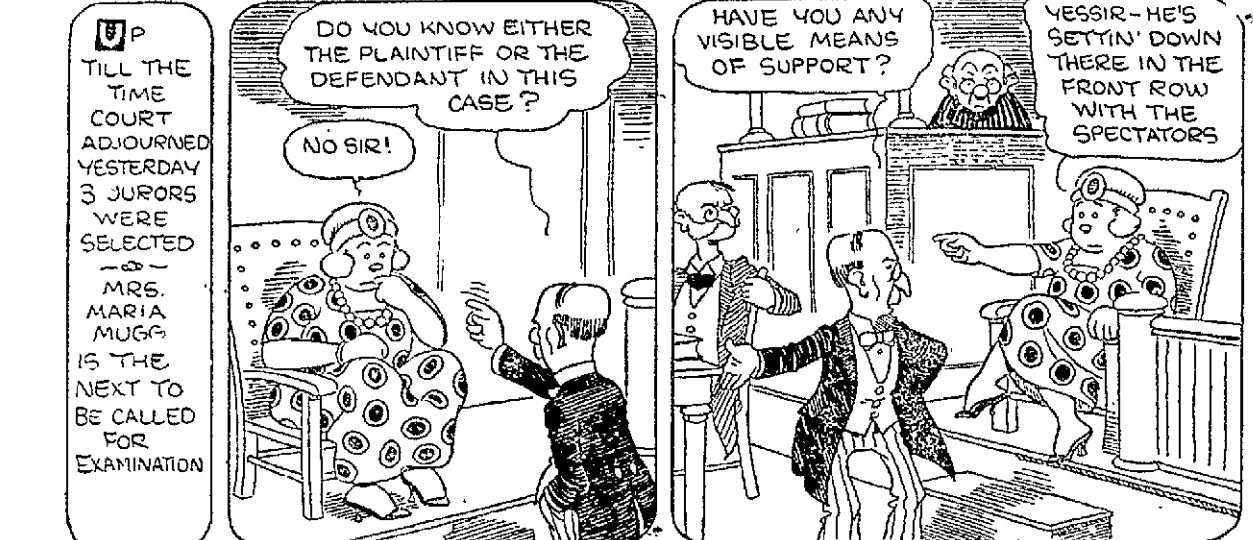

She sat in a chair and burst into hysterical laughter. The Wreck turned to Charley and shrugged his shoulders.

"Sometimes she gets a little nervous spell," he explained. "She'll be all right in a minute or two."

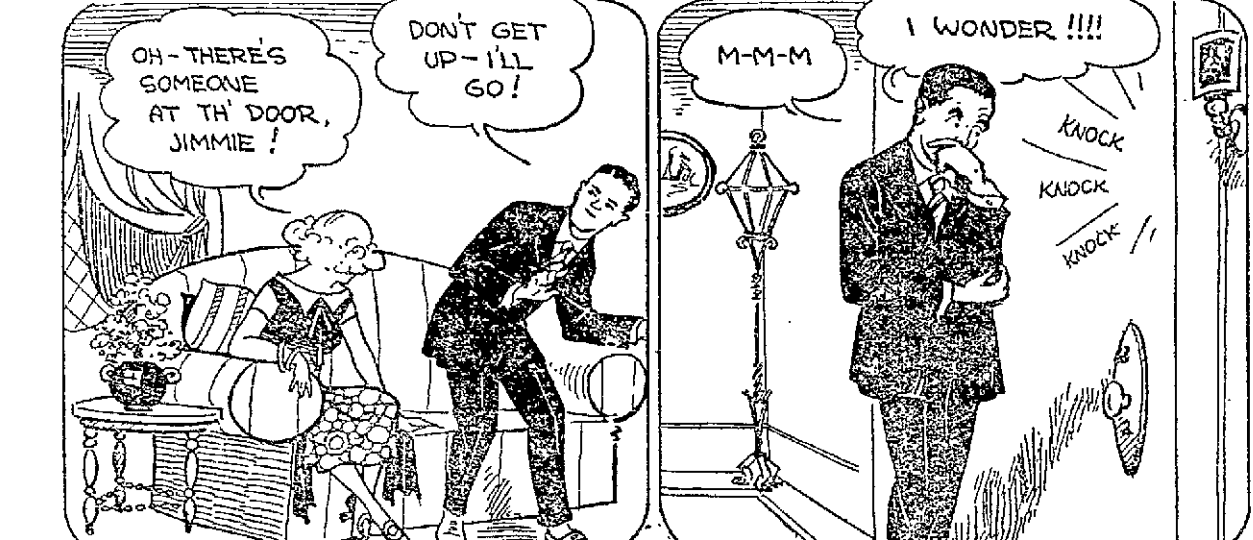

Sally listened in amazement as she laughed. It was almost impossible to believe, Henry Williams said she was nervous!

"Now I reckon we're all normal again," remarked Charley, with a satisfied nod. "There ain't anything in the world like matrimonial teamwork, ma'am. When Henry busts loose, you soothe him down. And when you bust loose, Henry jams his foot on the brake. It sort of keeps

Dance Away Boredom Advises One Young Lady Who Will Teach

BY GENE COHN

New York. If it keeps up the social Register will have to issue a Business Directory as an appendix.

For the rebellion of the young ladies of the "400" against the routine of social life is spreading.

They want to mix business with bridge; to tell with tea; ease with earning and sailing with sailing.

They would melt the silver spoon with which they were born and turn the contents to practical purposes.

These rebellious young leaders of American society have concluded that every woman should have a practical vocation, whatever her wealth or social station.

They want to find out how the money that seems to come so easily is made.

ESCAPADES BOREDOM

Just a short time ago it was Mrs. Morgan Belmont, one of the most noted and beautiful members of New York's "400." Soon she will take a position as style meteor in a big Fifth Avenue store.

And now comes Mrs. Gloria Gould Bishop, the young and charming daughter of George Jay Gould, with the announcement that she will open a school for dancing this fall.

"If it were not for my dancing, I'm afraid things would be boring," frankly admitted the young expert of the classical dance.

It is no fact, she hastens to add. For ten years Gloria Gould studied with the famous Louis Chaild in what became known as "the millionaire class."

"I am going to start with children's classes," she went on in outlining her aims. "I will teach them folk dancing. No, this will not be a class for the children of the rich. There are no social lines in art, as everyone knows—or should. Only grace, rhythm, feeling and technique count, and some of our finest forms of dance expressions come from peasants—certainly they are the most natural and naive and whole hearted in their dancing."

"Don't you think society could learn a few things about grace? Do you intend to attempt any reforms in society dancing—so-called?" she was asked.

"I don't see why," she hesitated. "There are awkward squads at social functions, as elsewhere. But I believe in all forms of the dance. I shall not be a reformer—but a teacher. Later I shall probably have classes in society ball room dancing."

WOULD FIND TALENT

Will you try to make discoveries of unseeing talent among the poor?" was the next question.

"I should love to discover some future Pavlova. But you know parents. So many of them are convinced that their children are prodigies. They must have training—but I certainly shall look."

"Are you taking up this class to escape the much-discussed social boredom?" the interviewer concluded.

"Without my dancing I should be bored—most certainly. I'm quite sure I would. But I take it as an art, as well as a diversion," she admitted.

"There is little or no affection and a great deal of frank, girlish charm in this 'business woman' of tomorrow. Artists predict a most successful business career."

With Mr. Morgan Belmont this is not the first rebellion. Four years ago she surprised society by going to work in the movies and taking a small part in Griffith's "Way Down East."

One of the best-dressed women of the set she now will tell other women how to dress and, it is predicted, the push for advice will resemble a big bargain sale.

In taking this position Mrs. Belmont deserts her yacht and blooded horses and afternoon affairs.

But she wants to learn business from the inside.

She thinks women should have some business background. Thus far she has found time to rear two healthy youngsters and play her social hole as well.

Meanwhile the circles of the "400" are filled with rumors of how a half dozen young leaders of wealthdom will undertake everything from selling automobiles to raising blooded dogs for market.

Adventures Of The Twins

THE MAGIC ANCHOR

Davy Jones sent for his magic anchor and gave it to Nick.

"Use it like a lasso," he explained. "A lasso wouldn't be a bit of use in the sea any more than an anchor would be in a desert. Just hang it over your sea-horse's neck and when you see Tweekanose, let out the rope and throw it. It will be sure to catch him."

"But—" said Nancy and Nick and the Sand Man and Captain Pennywinkle all together. "But—"

"But what?" Davy Jones wanted to know. "Why is everybody looking so queer 'n everything?"

"Because," explained Nick, "our sea-horses aren't much bigger than pollywogs and the anchor is as big as a wash-tub."

"Why, so it is!" declared Davy Jones. "But what of it? Look at you two children. I bet you anything that you used to be as big as real children."

"We are real children," declared Nancy. "The reason we are little enough to ride on sea-horses is that we can make ourselves any size at all as long as we have our magic shoes on."

"Yo, ho, ho, and a bottle of rum!" roared Davy Jones. "Well this anchor is magic, too. I wouldn't have it if it wasn't. Just watch!"

And he said:

"Ink, wink.

Now ponder and think.

Down under the water.

It's right you should shrink."

And instantly the magic anchor shrank until it was small enough for a watch chain.

Davy Jones picked it up and handed it to Nick. "Here you are," he said. "If this doesn't do the work and catch that rascal, Tweekanose, I'm very much mistaken."

"But how can we get it back to you?" asked Nick.

"Chickens always come home to roost," said Davy Jones. "Just drop it into the ocean any time, any place and it will come right back."

The Twins and the Sand Man and Captain Pennywinkle thanked Davy Jones and bade him good-bye.

Then they started again to look for Tweekanose on the bottom of the ocean.

One good thing they did. It just happened that they passed the magic mill that ground out the salt that made the ocean bitter. You know! The one the dwarf lost overboard off a boat and that has been grinding out salt ever since?

Well it had, and when the Twins came up to the mill and saw it, Nick said:

"Ink, wink.

Now ponder and think.

Down under the water.

It's right you should shrink."

The mill began to shrink, and it shrank and shrank until it disappeared altogether.

"I'm sure I am ever so much obliged," said Captain Pennywinkle. "The sea was getting so salty it gave me a headache. Oh, look out!"

For there was Tweekanose sitting on a sword-fish and coming right toward them.

Nick threw the magic anchor as Davy Jones had said and pulled him off, and Captain Pennywinkle went right up and grabbed him.

But in the scramble the sword-fish's sharp nose tore the bag of Sleepy sand and it scattered all over the bottom of the sea.

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed the dreadful little gnome. "You've got me but not the sleepy sand. It is gone forever."

"Not if I know anything," said the Sand Man.

Author Tells Faux Pas Of Political Society

Washington — In the midst of her social duties in Washington and her responsibilities as the wife of a politician and the mother of three sons, Frances Farin Keyes finds time for the career she has always cherished—that of an author.

Her latest book, "Letters From a Senator's Wife," should be on the required reading list of every woman who contemplates living in Washington or taking any part in official life. It will save the fledgling politician's wife many embarrassments and prepare her intelligently for what is to come.

When her husband, who is the senator from New Hampshire, entered upon his official duties in Washington, Mrs. Keyes found herself facing a job just as new and trying as his—that of being a senator's wife.

She recounts her first experiences with the utmost candor and does not hesitate to mention her first faux pas as well as her triumphs, and her series of letters gives a very interesting sketch of social life in Washington.

LIVED IN CONFRONTATION

She maintains a constant appreciation of the advantages of Washington society, a kindly tolerance for all its formalities and seems never to forget what the folks back home want to hear about.

"Because," she told me very frankly, "I know what it is to live in the country, more or less cut off from people who seem to be doing things and having an exciting life. The first years of my married life were spent that way."

"I know what a mother wants to read in those few minutes after the last baby has been put to bed and the household duties have been brought to the point where they may be safely deferred and carried over to the next day."

"I know what it is to carry about in my head all sorts of stories and plots that you simply haven't got time to get down on paper."

MOTHER'S VIEWPOINT

"In other words, I've been a lone some, sometimes very discouraged and overworked housewife, with apparently nothing ahead but more of the same. Now that I have a chance to participate in a broader and more exciting life, I want to share it with those who don't."

Mrs. Keyes has already done considerable fiction and is a public speaker of much ability. She knows politics thoroughly and undoubtedly could have a spectacular career in politics if she wanted to. But she prefers to write.

"One politician in a family is enough," she says. "Being the wife of a politician is a job by itself. You could scarcely combine the two."

Read Books And Develop Mind Action

BY EVANGELINE WEED
Director of Personality Institute,
Boston

The reader has been given suggestions on manner of speech, including greatly enhanced by correct grammar. Of course, one's personality is greatly enhanced by correct grammar and expressive words, but one, too, must have conversational material and his own thoughts.

1. How can one obtain interesting conversational material? One of the best sources is in reading newspapers, magazines and books. Take mental note of thoughts and descriptions that interest you in reading. Perhaps various items will suggest certain persons whom you will be interested in them. Keeping informed about events and keeping supplied with ideas one may get from novels is important to one who would be interesting in conversation.

2. Can one improve his thoughts? Certainly. The study of thoughts, psychology, shows us that one's thoughts spring from the mind much as a product is turned out of a mill. First the raw material, impressions, had in reading and listening, the seeing, is put into the mind; the productive process, thinking, is to work and your own ideas are forthcoming. You can change your thoughts, improving them, by selecting your "raw material" carefully. The result will be automatic.

Watch your spontaneous thought, analyze it. If you do not like it, revise it consciously. The thought will be repressed on your subconscious mind and will come again, revised. Educate yourself consciously and your subconscious mind, that which creates your thoughts, will respond accordingly.

To have confidence in your own thoughts you should learn to act on your own advice. Convince yourself, by comparison, that your opinion measures up to the opinion of another person. Avoid relying too much on other's. Anyhow, you usually reject advice unless you agree with it—why not advise yourself, and enjoy self-reliance?

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER, CONTINUED

In silence Jack, with his hand under my arm, pulled me along to the roadster, dumped my bag in beside me and started with a foot that threw my head back violently.

"I beg your pardon," he said with icy politeness.

"Don't mention it," I said quite as suavely, but, little Marquise, I could not stand it.

"Jack," I remonstrated, "you just asked me to promise you that I would never go away and leave you again. I am tempted now to turn right around and go back to New York, for ever since I have been away, dear, you have written me such wonderful love letters, you have told me how lovely you were, and I have loved you so greatly, that it is breaking my heart to come home to find that you are grouchy over such a little thing as my leaving my hair, especially as you have already told me that it was more becoming than when it was long. You are just nursing your own foolish prejudices."

"Have you any particular objection to bobbed hair? You must have seen that every woman is wearing short hair now."

"Oh, I guess I am a beast, Leslie," said Jack all smiles again, "but there are some things that a man admires in every woman but his wife. He hates to have his wife break tradition. I couldn't bear to see you smoke, dear, and yet last evening at dinner I made no objections, in fact, I thought it rather smart, when Mrs. Atherton brought out her cigarette case and deliberately lighted a monogrammed bag with her coffee."

"Oh, did Sally dine at the house last night?" I asked.

"No. We worked late and went afterward over to the hotel grill."

"She is an awfully clever girl, Jack," I said.

"The cleverest I have ever known," he answered quickly.

Would you believe it, little Marquise, that at this unqualified compliment I felt a little qualm of envy? Before I was married I used to wonder why so many women were jealous of their husband's secretaries—their daytime wives, as it were. Now I knew.

Mentally I called myself a cat for thinking these thoughts, and as Jack lifted me in his arms and set me down before the apartment house I raised my lips to his for a kiss of reconciliation.

Dear Jack, he met me more than halfway.

"Leslie," he said as he turned my kiss, "don't think I am angry. I was just surprised and hurt. I felt as though you had maimed yourself, as though you had cut off one of your lovely fingers. But I am not going to worry any longer. All you women will do just what you want to do, whether we men object or not. I am wondering, however, what mother will say when she sees your bobbed head."

Love Making On Screen Is Too Intimate

Hollywood.—Love making is too intimately shown on the screen, believes Lon Chaney. Its physical aspect, comprising the bulk of movie content and frequently verging on the clinical, often affronts the most furtive of the beholder's instincts.

Chaney, picturesque character actor, is not one of your "great screen lovers." Nor is he given to effusions on the technique of romance.

"All the more ardent phazes of love making," says Chaney, should be done on the screen by suggestion. An audience should see little more of courtship in films than it sees in actual life.

"And how much do we witness in real life, even though it is continuously imminent? Very little. Wooing, by its very nature, is the most secretive of vital human activities. Nature keeps it furtive among most of her creatures because it is so closely linked with the self-protective instinct. We have refined the blunt facts and approaches of mating with the words and gestures of romance. This in itself shows the squeamishness even to discuss them publicly."

SCREEN SHOWS SECRETS

"In real life we know little of love making except that in which we ourselves engage. Yet, on the screen, we are shown pretty near everything."

"Now, it is a curious fact that the healthy, normal human dislike intruding upon another's courtship almost as much as he resents being intruded upon. That is probably one of man's oldest fears, a pavement for modern romantic love."

Screen love scenes, just to the degree that they create around them, heret, in the sensitive at least, the feeling that these shadowy lovers are being detestably spied upon by folk in the theater gloom. It stirs to some degree that repugnance which the normal person has for public show of affection, a repugnance which finds expression in laws, ordinances, censorship and even the "bouncer" of dance halls.

"Folk squirm uneasily at these 'improprieties.' And they squirm even though the figures on the screen are but shadows in play, when love making becomes too adolescent, too explicit, too devoid of the explosive as 'Mush' or 'Applesauce.' The stiff silence or troubled giggles of elders is equally eloquent of a disturbing reaction."

MODESTY DECLINE

"Of course the screen has reflected, and perhaps aided, in the growing tendency toward public love making, which in its more brazen aspects reveals decadence. At best, it is called a decline in modesty."

"Exploitation of that open curiosity has been a big factor in picture making, but while its whetting

TELLS OF THRILLS IN DISABLED PLANE

C. L. Henderson Is Rotary Speaker—Reid and Plantz Made Honorary Members

Harrowing experiences in a sea plane during a journey in Canada were told by C. L. Henderson at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary club at Conway hotel Tuesday noon. A special feature of the meeting was the reception of Thomas B. Reid, publisher of the former Appleton Post, and Dr. Samuel Plantz, president of Lawrence college, as honorary members.

Mr. Henderson went as far north as James Bay on his recent Canadian trip, he said. The return to southern Canada cities was made by seaplane and a thrill was furnished when part of the mechanism broke and disabled the engine while the craft was high in the air. It made a long nose dive but the aviator kept his head, was able to right his ship and dived it gracefully to the water below.

A companion plane and this one lost sight of each other while going through the clouds and there was doubt if the second machine would sight the first and furnish parts which it carried so repairs could be made. The companion ship passed over the heads of the stranded men without signaling them and traveled around the locality for 24 hours. It then descended, landing near the disabled ship. It was found that the landing was made only because of necessary repairs and not because the first plane had been seen. Mr. Henderson and the aviator therefore might have been left for some time unaided were it not for this circumstance. The planes were repaired and the remainder of the journey made in safety.

Mr. Reid and Dr. Plantz both were at the Rotary club meeting as guests Tuesday when the announcement was made that they were enrolled as honorary members.

Three of the Rotarians will go to Madison Thursday to attend the luncheon of the Rotary club of that city. They are Lee C. Rasey, chairman of the Lent district conference here last spring, George R. Walten, conference secretary, and E. N. Smith, president of the Appleton club. They will assist the Madison committee in arranging the 1925 conference there, giving the club the benefit of their experience.

KEEP COOLIDGE ROBINS' PLEA TO APPLETON VOTERS

Noted Economist Makes Strong Appeal to Elect Republican Candidate

A program of retrenchment and economy.

A plea of protection for American capital and labor.

Constitutional government subject to the sovereign will of the people.

An international policy looking toward permanent universal peace.

These were cited as four reasons why the Republican administration should be retained and President Coolidge returned to office, in an address delivered before about 400 persons in Lawrence Memorial chapel Tuesday night by Raymond Robins, internationally known social and political economist.

AFRAID OF BOVINS

The utter hopelessness of victory by either the Democratic party or the Progressive movement was also set forth with the prediction that every vote cast for Robert M. La Follette or for John W. Davis would be thrown away and would merely mean that the present political contest shall be decided by the people of the United States but by congress which would either be hopelessly deadlocked or would make Charles W. Bryan president.

Mr. Robins was introduced by Attorney J. P. Frank. The Attorney had played several selections and accompanied the audience to the singing of "American."

"When taxation in relation to production, or when the tax eaters in relation to the producers become too large," he said, "then that social order in which that kind of taxation prevails has begun to decline."

While admitting that an overwhelming task, such as the World war, for instance, always brings with it a great deal of waste, the speaker pointed out that immediately after the war when the Republicans assumed control, the first consideration was the reduction of taxes.

"The government of which I speak tonight," he said, "has an excellent reputation. The national debt was reduced from $26,000,000,000 on June 1, 1919, to $21,254,000,000 on June 1, 1924, making an average reduction of $1,000,000,000 for each of the last five years. That is the best record the administration of which I speak has to offer."

The speaker also mentioned that the liberty loan bonds have again reached par value, the number of public employees has been reduced, and a budget system such as in use in modern business has been established for the first time in the history of American government.

It is this program of retrenchment and economy that President Coolidge, whom the speaker described as "that quiet, steady, thrifty New Englander," presents. It is in direct opposition to the waste and inefficiency that would result from government ownership as advocated by the third party movement, he said.

WANTS PROTECTION

He asked for a continuance of the administration's policy of protection of American capital and labor against competition from the Old world, and the preservation of the purchasing power, fair living conditions and standard wages for every American family.

Mr. Robins appealed in behalf of constitutional government. The two salient features of the American constitution he described as follows: First, the separation of the functions of government into three independent and coordinated departments of government, the judicial, the executive and the legislative branches; second, by placing on the Supreme court the obligation to interpret the acts of the government when these are called in question.

ACT IN PASSION

Leaving no doubt that the Supreme judge of its own acts, as advocated by LaFollette, he said, would allow that body to enact legislation in temporary popular favor and in the heat of passion, but detrimental to the welfare of the nation. If the Supreme court, consisting of nine justices, should ever become too conservative or too refractory, the nation could have recourse to other means. Among the means he mentioned the right of Congress at any time to enlarge the personnel of the Supreme court and appoint justices favorable to a proposed measure. The other means, he said, can be used by practically every president. Justices die or retire on pension during every administration, and the vacancies could be filled with men in sympathy with the will of the people.

The speaker described the difference between the Progressive movement of 1912 led by Roosevelt with whom the speaker was associated and the so-called Progressive movement led by LaFollette. The Wisconsin senator has collected all the Socialists, all the discontented working men and farmers, and the feeble and young voters desiring a change, but with no chance of electing their man.

Who would succeed LaFollette in the movement after he goes down? That was the question propounded by the speaker. If, for some reason, some extremist as the head of the movement seeking to build up Socialism on the foundation laid by LaFollette.

Mr. Robins was introduced by Attorney J. P. Frank. The Attorney had played several selections and accompanied the audience to the singing of "American."

"When taxation in relation to production, or when the tax eaters in relation to the producers become too large," he said, "then that social order in which that kind of taxation prevails has begun to decline."

While admitting that an overwhelming task, such as the World war, for instance, always brings with it a great deal of waste, the speaker pointed out that immediately after the war when the Republicans assumed control, the first consideration was the reduction of taxes.

"The government of which I speak tonight," he said, "has an excellent reputation. The national debt was reduced from $26,000,000,000 on June 1, 1919, to $21,254,000,000 on June 1, 1924, making an average reduction of $1,000,000,000 for each of the last five years. That is the best record the administration of which I speak has to offer."

The speaker also mentioned that the liberty loan bonds have again reached par value, the number of public employees has been reduced, and a budget system such as in use in modern business has been established for the first time in the history of American government.

It is this program of retrenchment and economy that President Coolidge, whom the speaker described as "that quiet, steady, thrifty New Englander," presents. It is in direct opposition to the waste and inefficiency that would result from government ownership as advocated by the third party movement, he said.

WANTS PROTECTION

He asked for a continuance of the administration's policy of protection of American capital and labor against competition from the Old world, and the preservation of the purchasing power, fair living conditions and standard wages for every American family.

Mr. Robins appealed in behalf of constitutional government. The two salient features of the American constitution he described as follows: First, the separation of the functions of government into three independent and coordinated departments of government, the judicial, the executive and the legislative branches; second, by placing on the Supreme court the obligation to interpret the acts of the government when these are called in question.

ACT IN PASSION

Leaving no doubt that the Supreme judge of its own acts, as advocated by LaFollette, he said, would allow that body to enact legislation in temporary popular favor and in the heat of passion, but detrimental to the welfare of the nation. If the Supreme court, consisting of nine justices, should ever become too conservative or too refractory, the nation could have recourse to other means. Among the means he mentioned the right of Congress at any time to enlarge the personnel of the Supreme court and appoint justices favorable to a proposed measure. The other means, he said, can be used by practically every president. Justices die or retire on pension during every administration, and the vacancies could be filled with men in sympathy with the will of the people.

CANFIELD BOOK POPULAR AGAIN

"The Homemaker" in Biggest Demand at Library Last Week

"The Home Maker" by Dorothy Canfield has again crept into public favor, for it was included among the most popular books at Appleton Public Library for the last week. For a number of weeks preceding the last "The Home Maker" has been crowded into the background when newer books were put into circulation. A problem that is dominant now is taken up in the book and the call for it has been steady, though not sensational.

A book that is popular seasonally is "Rise of the World" by Kathleen Norris. The name Norris attached to any volume insures a wide circulation, according to the librarians.

Two other books that were unusually popular are "Monsieur Beaucaire" by Booth Tarkington. Tarkington's book and its romantic characters are beloved by many, and the recent showing of its picturization has caused its circulation at the library to increase greatly.

One of the best that is continually in demand by those who like light fiction is "Pecock Feathers" by Temple Bailey, a novel that takes up the eternal conflict between wealth and love. The authoress will be remembered for her other novels, "The Dim Lantern," "The Gay Cockade," "The Trumpeter Swan," "The Tin Soldiers," and many others, all of which have had wide circulation.

Flashes Out Of The Air

WMAQ, Chicago, will radio "The Neighbors", a play by Zona Gale, at 8:30 Wednesday night. No doubt Appleton listeners will want to hear this production by the Wisconsin author.

WGN, Chicago, also will radio the address by President Coolidge Thursday evening, beginning about 8:30. Mr. Coolidge speaks at a banquet given by the National Chamber of Commerce.

British amateurs are participating in the Pan-American tests arranged by the American Radio Relay League for Oct. 14 to 24 inclusive according to the latest issue of the Radio News Bulletin received by Appleton amateurs. This is of interest to local amateurs because of the fact that some of them have "worked" England. American, Canadian and British amateurs will transmit for the benefit of South American operators from midnight to 12:30 A. M., eastern time. Immediately after a two-way communication will be attempted.

Despite a great deal of interference from a variety of sources, British radio amateurs are able to copy signals from amateur stations in all radio districts of the United States, according to a letter received this week by the American Radio Relay League from Gerald Marcuse, honorary secretary of the Transmitters Section of the Radio Society of Great Britain.
